JUGGED.

A Mail Robber Captured.

Within the last twelve months there have been five mail robberies in this county. Three of these occurred on the Lafavette and two on the Ca dir route. The last one was on the Cadiz route last Thursday night, the lower than any where else. 13th, and on Saturday the robber was captured by special Detective W. W. Patterson, St. Louis, who was sent to work up the case. To Mr. Patterson we are indebted for the minute details of the robbery and capture. The mail for about a week previous had been carried on horseabout 24 years old. When he re- and may be seen in Mr. C. M. Laturned from Cadiz Thursday night tham's show window. One will be the mail bag was cut open and a reg-awarded to the best gentleman and istered letter from Cadiz, containing one to the best lady skater and only $200 of post office funds and a registered package containing a pair of gold spectacles were gone. Radford reported that four men halted him in Major's lane and cut open the bag and took out the packages and returned the rifled sack to him. The general opinion prevailed that the negro himself was the robber and be told subsequently that two men had robbed him. Detective Patterhad robbed him. Detective Patter-son arrived Friday and began to which is the nicest article in the way if the inventor, Mr. Howe, were here, shadow his man. It was soon of meal we ever saw. Since seeing he might receive an ovation. The shown that Radford had been and eating bread made from it we account of the engine with the vilspending money freely and on Friday night the officer was satisfied of his guilt, and got a warrant could be made from corn." We adjust the officer was satisfied of his guilt, and got a warrant could be made from corn." We adjust the found Radford had vise lovers of corn bread to try it.

The water was brought from a reserved. Patterson found three of the $10^ bills

Maine village, where its efficiency in struction of the telegraph office has described in the postal remissance stolen, which fixed the robbery upon Radford beyond a doubt. Radford demonstrated. Every village should see to it that suitable fire precautions are made now that winter has written for a little more observation and Policeman Chrisset in. Mr. Patterson and Policeman Chris.

Biggerstaff went to that place and arrested him. He denied his guilt and shed tears copiously but when confronted with the direct evidence away an editor from that village:

and experience. We trust that Car bou and Fort Fairfield are now convinced that a suitable fire apparatule is a good thing to have.—Aroostoo (Me.) Republican, Oct 31. confronted with the direct evidence away an editor from that village: he began to tell conflicting stories again and when he was locked up in the Democrat, arrived in our city jail he weakened and made a full last Friday night and expected to confession and promised to restore all leave the next morning, but saw so change, was large at the sales it many things calculated to excite week, and the board seemed wonder in a rustic mind that he rewas made lighter. He told where his pocket book containing $140 was, which amount was recovered. He then induced a number of his friends to help make up the deficit and a payements running is recovered. to help make up the deficit and a pavements running in various direcof $18.35 more making $158.35 of $200 several of our citizens became interrecovered. He was taken to the ested in showing him around. When his attention was called to a street, and the robbery in Major's lane his attention was called to a street, and the rifled letter was found but he would ask, "where does this road the spectacles which were thrown lead?" He spoke of gas posts as the spectacles which were thrown over into a field could not be found.

Radford is in jall and the U. S. Marshal will be here for him to-day Much credit is due Mr. Patterson for the prompt and effective manner in which he worked up the case. The local police assisted him very materially and worked energetically in bringing the robber to justice, and to them a large share of the credit of catching the thief is due.
